Professor of Genetics
University of Wisconsin
Madison, Wisconsin

Dear Dr. Lederberg:

A study of congenital subluxation was reported by W. N. Konde in North American Veterinarian 28: 595-599, 1947. Further references can be found in various issues of the Shepherd Dog Review from December 1953 to August 1954. Some of these contributions are polemical rather than scientific, but they may have some value.

I have been collecting some pedigree data on subluxation. Just how far I shall be able to go with it is a question. The condition varies in degree of expression so that a radiological examination of affected cases and sibs should probably be carried out routinely. If Dr. Schales is collecting such material I should be happy to give assistance and to make our own data available to him.

Sincerely yours,

J. L. Fuller
